What can the Bryant Scholars program do for you?
With the support and guidance of accomplished faculty mentors, Bryant Scholars pursue a path that prepares them to compete for prestigious awards and advance their academic research and careers.

We provide support and guidance for current undergraduates and recent graduates interested in applying for fellowships including opportunities to:

- Attend webinars and seminars on a full range of fellowship, grant, and award opportunities;
- Learn about the requirements to complete the fellowship application process;
- Work closely with a faculty mentor who will support their scholarship endeavors;
- Collaborate with dedicated writing specialists to help students develop their fellowship applications;
- Conduct mock interviews to develop skills that help them stand out in their competitive fellowship interviews.

What will Make Me a Bryant Scholar?
A Bryant Scholar is committed to thinking, questioning, and pursuing meaningful work that promotes scholarship in any or all of the dimensions below.

Scholarship of Discovery is academic work that advances disciplinary and professional knowledge through empirical research, historical investigation, theory development, and other scholarly inquiries.

Scholarship of Integration makes connections across disciplines and uses data in a meaningful way to connect ideas and produce new insights and knowledge in order to respond to intellectual problems and pressing human problems.

Scholarship of Application may be accomplished through practice and application of the outcomes of academic discovery toward the benefit of individuals, groups, corporations, and society as a whole.

Scholarship of Engagement includes teaching, research, and/or service applied to promote public good and to address pressing social, civic, and ethical problems in a community or society.

“Bryant Scholars is an exciting initiative highlighting the commitment of the University to innovative academic scholarship, both for faculty and for students. I am enthusiastic about the opportunities the Bryant Scholars program will provide our students and am confident this program will further enhance our national prominence.

The student body already has potential Fulbright, Truman, Marshall, and Rhodes Scholars. This program will provide those students with the resources, tools, and programming to ensure that they become recipients of these prestigious awards.”

BRYANT SCHOLARS
Your Path to Greatness

The Bryant Scholars program engages and supports outstanding students who are committed to excellence in scholarship and who aspire to pursue prestigious grants, fellowships, and awards.

We seek, support, and prepare outstanding students to compete and win national and international scholarships and fellowships, including Fulbright, Marshall, and Truman awards. These awards are available to undergraduate and graduate students.

Joining Bryant Scholars
Outstanding students who aspire to become Bryant Scholars do so by:

• submitting a screening form to the director of the Bryant Scholars program;
• attending orientation events;
• participating in a required review process;
• and applying for scholarships that require institutional endorsement.

A review council of faculty and deans will interview students, evaluate their applications, and provide support and guidance to potential candidates. The University will endorse students who receive a nomination from the review council and their applications will be forward for submission.
